

No money for installed photovoltaic panels

Overview

This guide will walk you through everything there is to know as well as how to get solar panels for free. Companies often offer “free” solar panels through leases or power purchase agreements (PPAs), where they install and maintain the panels at no upfront cost. In this article, we'll break down what “no-cost solar” and “no-money-down solar” actually are, how some companies use these terms to mislead customers, what you should watch out for, and why working with a reputable local installer matters more than ever. While this might sound enticing, there is a lot more to consider before signing a lease. The federal government doesn't have programs for free solar installation, and it doesn't require companies to provide free solar panels. Most free solar panel offers are actually solar leases, power purchase agreements, $0 down financing — or sometimes outright scams. You don't own the system, but you do get to use the electricity it generates, typically at rates lower than what. Except for very rare cases, it's unlikely that you'll be able to install solar panels at no cost whatsoever or that the government is “giving them away.”
